London, Thursday 29 June 2006

Tomkins plc is hosting a Capital Markets Day for investors and analysts

As part of our commitment to the financial markets to increase the understanding of the different businesses within the Tomkins Group, Jim Nicol, Chief Executive, and Ken Lever, Chief Financial Officer, are hosting two investor seminars. The first seminar will take place today in London at Cazenove's offices, 20 Moorgate. The second seminar will take place in New York on the 6 July at the New York Stock Exchange.

Senior management will be making presentations on a number of our businesses to provide investors and analysts with an insight into the markets, competitors, new products and strategy. No new information on current trading will be provided.

The slides from the presentations will be available from 7am on the Tomkins website at www.tomkins.co.uk for a duration of two weeks.
